PRIVATE ALTERNATIVE LOANS

Private alternative loans are non-federal educational loans available from a variety of national lending institutions. Students are encouraged to first complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at www.FAFSA.gov in order to exhaust all eligibility for federal funds before applying for an alternative loan.

Alternative loans require a good credit rating and usually require a credit worthy co-signer. If a parent has been denied for the Federal PLUS Loan due to adverse credit that parent usually will not qualify as a cosigner for an alternative loan.

The maximum amount that a student can borrow in an alternative loan is their Cost of Attendance minus any other Financial Aid awarded.

Alternative loan processing may take several weeks from the time you apply for the loan until the loan funds actually are disbursed to your Student Account. Regulation Z is a new federal policy which became effective February 14, 2010. It requires that lenders of private educational loans provide a series of loan disclosures to the student borrower. It also requires that the student borrower complete a Self Certification form prior to the loan being disbursed.

These new requirements will affect the time frame for lenders to process and disburse alternative loans. If you plan on applying for an alternative loan you need to start the application process several weeks before the funds are needed. Registration holds will not be cleared if you have applied for a private educational loan and the loan is not fully completed and approved for disbursement with the lender. Student Account finance charges will not be waived if the loan disbursement is received after the payment due date required by the Student Accounts Department.

We suggest you research these questions with the lender of your choice when selecting an Alternative loan:

Does the loan require a co-signer? Is there a co-signer release option?

Are there fees on the loan?

What is my interest rate?

When does the loan repayment start? How long do I have to repay?

Can principal and interest be deferred while the student is in school?

Can principal and interest be deferred if the student later attends graduate school?

What repayment benefits are offered on the loan?

APPLYING FOR AN ALTERNATIVE LOAN

Some lenders may have restrictions on who they will lend to. If you need an alternative loan because you are enrolled less than half-time status or need to pay off a balance from a prior term, you will need to check the lender's eligibility requirements before applying for the loan.

The lenders listed below are in alphabetical order and have provided private alternative loans to Pepperdine University, Seaver College students in the past three years. We recommend that you review the terms and conditions of several lenders before applying.

Pepperdine University, Seaver College does not have any preferred lender arrangements with any of the lenders listed below and cannot recommend a lender to you. You have the right to borrow through the lender of your choice and are not required to use a lender listed below. You can apply for your loan on the lender's website.
